

GENAI SESSION • PROMPT ENGINEERING DEMO

Barcelona in 5 Days

A complete day-by-day travel itinerary generated end-to-end with a single structured prompt — built to show how the prompt shapes the output, not just what the model can write.

5 Days / 15 Activities

Budget €205 - €295

THE PROMPT BEHIND THE OUTPUT

Role + Structured Output Prompting

نوع البرومبت المستخدم في بناء البريزنتيشن

01 - ROLE

Persona Assignment

The model is told who to be — an expert local travel planner — so tone, vocabulary and level of detail lock in before a single word is written.

02 - CONSTRAINTS

Explicit Boundaries

City, trip length, daily time blocks, transport method and a cost range are all fixed up front. Constraints remove hallucinated filler.

03 - FORMAT

Output Schema

Every day must return the same five fields: Morning, Afternoon, Evening, Transportation, Estimated cost — making the result directly slide-ready.

04 - ZERO-SHOT

No Examples Needed

No sample day was provided. Structure alone carried the instruction — the classic sign of a well-engineered zero-shot prompt.

Act as an expert local travel guide for Barcelona.

Build a 5-day itinerary for a first-time visitor.

For each day, return exactly:

- Morning / Afternoon / Evening activities
- Transportation method
- Estimated daily cost in EUR

Group each day around one theme (history, Gaudí, views, culture, coast).

Tone: concise, practical, no filler.

KEY TAKEAWAYS

Same Model, Better Prompt, Better Output

A vague request ("plan me a trip to Barcelona") gives a generic paragraph. A role + constraints + schema prompt gives a structured, presentation-ready itinerary on the first try — no editing, no rewriting.
